Barriers to Study Abroad

Underrepresented students: African American, Hispanic, and native American

When considering study abroad students ask:

- Does anyone look like me?
  - Are any of my friends going?

- How much does it cost?
  - Are there any scholarships?

- Where in the world?
  - I’ve never heard of “Ecuador”. Why would I want to go there?

- My parents don’t want me to do this.
  - Who do you know in your circle of support who has travelled?

- I have never travelled before.
  - How do I get a passport?
Building Community

Lindner College of Business Business Fellows Program is the first and only college-administered program at an Ohio business school specifically dedicated to supporting African American, Hispanic, Latino, and Native American students.
Building Community

Business Fellows Toronto experience

• Faculty-led, 5 day program, fall break of freshman year
• Recruit at freshmen orientation in the summer before classes start
• Encourage parents to help student get a passport before coming to campus- invest in their future, good for 10 years
• Toronto – low cost, bus ride away, diverse, must have a passport
• Program leaders from advising, career services, international, faculty

Funding Study Abroad

Q: How do I afford this?

• University scholarships for study abroad - UC Int’l block grants
• Be creative with scholarship money - charge full program fee and scholarship 80% of cost with designated BZF scholarship money
• Fundraising to subsidize programs – corporate sponsors in exchange for talent preview
• Lower cost destinations - bus to Toronto, destinations in Central American, housing with homestays
• Apply for Grants to cover components of program costs – P&G development grant, Alumni Fund

  • 43% participation rate of Business Fellows vs. 25% participation of all undergraduate business students
  • 81% participated in a faculty-led experience
  • 25 countries visited
• Toronto is an important component of our college recruiting
• Travel creates a strong community within the college
• Alumni of the program continue to stay connected to the college after graduation
• Students are introduced to networking, professional attire and behavior, and travel skills as freshmen
• The Toast graduation celebration boasts where in the world students have studied abroad

New Challenges

As our numbers grow, how to maintain a sustainable model for 50+ students
Small Group Discussion S.T.A.R.

At your table, discuss ways you can collaborate with unlikely partners across campus to engage underrepresented students in study abroad.

Situation: Use one of your current study abroad options

Task: Increase the participation rate of underrepresented students in your enrollment

Action: Engage a new partner in your recruitment, deliverable, travel prep

Result: Describe what a measurable “win” looks like for you
