Key Questions

● How can we use reflection activities and methods to help all students gain more from education abroad, and particularly those who have been historically underrepresented?
● What have we learned in this area from working with individual students, programs, and collaborations more broadly in the field of EA?
Definitions: Diversity & Inclusion

• Diversity: Individual differences (e.g., personality, learning styles, and life experiences) and group/social differences (e.g., race/ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation, country of origin, and ability as well as cultural, political, religious, or other affiliations) that can be engaged in the service of learning.

• Inclusion: The active, intentional, and ongoing engagement with diversity—in people, in the curriculum, in the co-curriculum, and in communities (intellectual, social, cultural, geographical) with which individuals might connect—in ways that increase one’s awareness, content knowledge, cognitive sophistication, and empathic understanding of the complex ways individuals interact within [and change] systems and institutions.

Clayton-Pedersen, O'Neill, & Musil, 2010
Definitions: Inclusive Excellence

As defined by the AAC&U, 4 primary elements:

- A focus on student intellectual and social development. Academically, this means offering the best possible course of study for the context in which the education is offered.

- A purposeful development and utilization of organizational resources to enhance student learning. Organizationally, it means establishing an environment that challenges each student to achieve academically at high levels and each member of the campus to contribute to learning and knowledge development.

- Attention to the cultural differences learners bring to the educational experience and that enhance the enterprise.

- A welcoming community that engages all of its diversity in the service of student and organizational learning.

Reflective Exercise

“The past is prologue…”

What do we bring to this experience? What are your bringing with you that others may not know or see? What is the central thing that you are carrying emotionally or intellectually that will inform this day/this experience.
Office of International Programs & the McGillycuddy-Logue Center for Undergraduate Global Studies

Boston College
Book Project

- Case studies examining groups that have been historically underrepresented in education abroad, including
- Connecting research & practice: Recognize that data and scholarship are necessary for diagnosis and sustainable change
Research Project

- Collaboration between the Office of International Programs (OIP) and the Thea Bowman AHANA & Intercultural Center (BAIC)
- Hiring of GA for outreach, with support for project
- IRB approval
- Multiyear Project
  - Campus review, including focus groups, analysis of existing data/observations, and survey (2016-17)
  - Intervention Strategies (2017-18)
  - Analysis (Summer 2018)
Findings from Phase I

Focus groups with AHANA students:

- Perception that study abroad is not affordable & need for more details about financial aid
- Importance of friends, family, & faculty in making decisions. Little about OIP advisors, confirming research by Stroud (2010).
- Faculty mentors were not always able to articulate the value of EA for AHANA
- Some mentioned being the only student of color on their program abroad, and feeling like a “token” representative
McGillycuddy-Logue Fellows Program

- 12-15 students
- 2-year program w/3 primary components: academics, experiential learning, and individual and community development.
- Coursework: “Global Ethics and Pragmatic Solidarity: Taking Action towards Transformative Change” & Senior Seminar w/Research
- Retreats, for community bonding & reflection
Reflections on Being Abroad Course

- 2-credit course, while students are overseas
- 8 weeks journaling, plus assignments and a final project
- Zoom meeting with each student
Other Spaces for Reflection

- Advising intake forms
- Pre- and post-program evaluations
- Overseas retreats, e.g. “Outpost”
- Mid-semester check-ins with resident staff and OIP advisors
- Information sessions including returning students
- Work with on-campus mentors

Tip: Use what you have. It’s not always necessary to add new components or requirements.
Center for Undergraduate Global Engagement

Columbia University
Diversity & Inclusion Dialogue Series

- Small group sessions that focused on a visualization exercise
- Pilot cohorts: LGBTQ+, Students of Color
- Attendees: out-bound students and returnee students, cross-campus colleagues
Key Learnings

- Use of arts in programming
- Blend of students helps the conversation
- Cross-campus partnerships help support the conversation
- Silence is okay!
Competency-focused Sessions

- Provides a shared language for all
- Cross-college sub-committees created to consider how students are supported before, during & after a global experience
- Pre-departure & re-entry sessions focused on competency development
Key Learnings

- Each individual is unique
- Shared language to support reflection, learning & development

Giving participants more time to reflect on the experience abroad may even allow for a greater increase and understanding of themselves and the overall impact of the experience (Kauffman & Kuh, 1984, pg. 17).
Student Stories

- Student Stories provide a space for students to reflect publicly
- Brainstorm various prompts that may be of interest to students on campus
Key Learnings

- Various reflection outlets are valuable
- Providing prompts goes a long way
CIEE Example: Frederick Douglass Global Fellows and Summer Scholars

- This program is an example of our best practices at work. As such, we are implementing lessons and practices from this program into our overall programming including:
  - Including relevant curriculum that’s customized to the location and the group
  - Strong emphasis on experiential learning pedagogy throughout program delivery
  - Establishing brave space from the beginning of the program and facilitating meaning-making through debriefing
  - Alumni and new participants mentor component – closing the intercultural learning loop
  - Community engagement
  - IDI debriefs – course co-taught by IDI QA
“Through study abroad, I began to identify and refine skills that will empower me to network anywhere in the world. My quest to expand beyond the lessons of the classroom were encouraged by my wonderful professors at CIEE, who purposefully created an atmosphere of curiosity and empathy during our time abroad.”

FDGF 2017

Questions to Consider

- Scalability
- Initiatives only for one group of students or all
- Customized, but able to have experiences that “speak” to a diverse range of perspectives
- Considering ways to get beyond #'s and photos of our students, focus on the key learning of the overall experiences
Table Reflection & Discussion

- What are our gaps of understanding of how the three areas we have explored today (diversity & inclusion, international education & reflection) interact with one another?
- Who can help us strengthen our understanding of these three areas of focus?
- What is one next step you may be able to take in order to enhance your work in this area?
Thank you.
